About the Financial Advisor Practice Management Development Program (PMDP)

Merrill Lynch Global Wealth Management, the largest business of its kind in the world, provides individuals and businesses with a customized approach to financial preparation. This highly entrepreneurial business model relies heavily on our Financial Advisors and the one-to-one relationship they develop with clients.

The Financial Advisor begins at Merrill Lynch as a Practice Management Development (PMD) Financial Advisor Trainee. This paid developmental program provides successful candidates with the training, education, mentoring, and resources to acquire the knowledge, licenses, registrations and critical skills necessary to launch a career as a Merrill Lynch Financial Advisor.

Career Night Opportunity

We will have a presentation in our Phoenix Office to review the Financial Advisor Training Program, job descriptions and career opportunities at Merrill Lynch for Financial Advisors.

PLEASE BRING 1 COPY OF YOUR RESUME.

This presentation is by invitation only.

Equal Opportunity Employer

Minimum Job Requirements:

Three or more years of sales experience. No prior licensing or recent experience as a Financial Advisor is necessary, however, trainees are expected to complete education and developmental activities that give you a foundation of financial planning skills and prepare you for the Series 7 General Securities and the Series 66 Insurance exams. Successful completion of the exams to become a fully licensed and registered Financial Advisor is expected within 4 months.
