

Michael J. Bazdarich is the chief macro analyst involved in Western Asset's macroeconomic research and commentary. He spends 100 percent of his time researching the outlook for the macro economy, the housing market, liability-driven investing and asset allocation issues. His research directly informs the firm's investment process, and he interacts regularly with senior members of the investment management team. Prior to joining Western Asset in 2005, Mr. Bazdarich worked as a consultant to the firm for 17 years, providing macroeconomic and interest rate forecasting research.
